Paris' Worst Flood. In the year 1296 rose the greatest food of which history makes any record in Paris. "Men went in boats over the wall of the king's garden." All the Island was covered, and from the foot of the bill of the university to the rising ground beyond the Marrais the upper stories of the houses rose out of a lake a mile wide. In that flood was swept away the old stone bridge that Charles the Bald had built centuries earlier, before even the Normans besleged the town, and in that flood the Petit Chatelet was destroyed. The Petit Pont fell into the river also, but that was nothing wonderful, for it was the most unfortunate of bridges and never stood firmly for fifty years at a stretch, but was forever being destroyed and regularly rebuilt. The waste of this flood was the signal for Philippe le Bel's rebuilding.-Hilaire Belloc's "Paris."
